THE TONTOQUONIAN

for 1943

Saugus High School
Saugus, Massachusetts

This Edition of the TONTOQUONIAN is respectfully dedicated to the Members of the Class of 1943 who are serving in the Armed Forces of
THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

FOREWORD:

The editors of this edition of the Tontoquonian wish to express their appreciation to the entire student body for the interest and cooperation they have shown.

For the personal help and encouragement of Mr. Moylan, Miss Marison, Miss Rodgers, Miss Pittard, and Miss Solomita we are especially grateful.

To all—our sincere thanks.

To the Members of the Graduating Class of 1943:

You are graduating at a time of world struggle and unrest unparalleled in the history of all men. It is altogether probable that most of you will shortly be serving your country either in the armed services or behind the lines on the home front. Remember always that it is a country well worth serving. Seek service according to your talents and in the field that your talents will help your country most.

After the struggle is over you will have a satisfaction that even time can never take away from you. It will be the satisfaction that in time of stress you served the United States of America to the very best of your ability.

Good luck and Godspeed.

Sincerely,

Vernon W. Evans,
Superintendent of Schools.

To the Graduating Class:

Graduating from Saugus High School this year should take on a new significance. It was only a few years ago that we as teachers were very much concerned because our graduates were not able to find employment. The war has completely changed this picture. Before next fall the majority of boys in this class will be in some branch of the service. Already a great many are in the service and have completed their basic training. Every girl in this class who wishes to do so will be able to find employment. The school is desirous of helping each member of the class. Our Guidance Department can be of great service to you, not only now, but in the months and years that lie ahead. Keep in touch with us. Do not break your ties with the school.

John A. W. Pearce,
Principal.

CLASS OF 1944

JUNIOR REPORT

The well organized class of 1944 can earnestly look back on a year of marked accomplishment in all its activities.

The juniors elected the following officers:

LOUIS VIENT ..... President
BEATRICE COUILLARD ..... Vice-President
PRISCILLA LANCASTER ..... Secretary
JEAN ROBINSON ..... Treasurer

Social events were not up to their usual standard, due to interfering war conditions.

The Junior Prom, being informal, was held on February 12th to the popular music of Lou Green and his orchestra. The gay-looking valentine decorations were highly praised by those attending the dance.

Having passed through that period of "Baby Freshmen," we now find ourselves at the end of our "Struggling Sophomore" days.

Elected as class officers were the following:

DONALD REINIGER ..... President
CHARLES SPENCE ..... Vice-President
LAUREL PRESTAT ..... Secretary
ROBERT THURRELL ..... Treasurer

Our stars of last year's basketball team—Don Reiniger, Dave Nagle, and Dick Allen—displayed that same "do-or-die" spirit on this year's team. The girls did well under the leadership of Helen Brussard.

Led by lettermen Don Reiniger, Bob Thurrell, Red Dukeshire, and Art Spinney, the sophomores had a successful football season. We are looking forward to seeing them again in action next year.

Come next September, we await with eagerness the role we play as "Big Juniors" and those all important class rings!

FRESHMAN REPORT

We became accustomed to many things during this memorable year—the jesting upperclassmen and homework being at the top of the list.

The class officers were:

ROBERT MCCARTHY ..... President
CHARLES GAETA ..... Vice-President
SHIRLEY HANCOCK ..... Secretary
BRUCE WAYBRIGHT ..... Treasurer

We were by no means slighted in athletics. Bob McCarthy and Tommy Kaylor did themselves proud by appearing in action on the football field. A long list of other boys practiced faithfully all season and we're certain they'll all be stars in the future.

In basketball, we were represented by Nickerson, Vatcher, McCarthy, and naturally a Nagle. Our "weaker sex" did splendidly under Pat Ballard's captainship.

Maybe next year, to which we are looking forward with keen anticipation, will prove disappointing; but for the present, we are satisfied.

"TONS OF MONEY"

Aubrey Henry Maitland Allington is an eccentric character, a maker of inventions that bring in no revenue. Being of the absent-minded type, it is not unusual to see him drinking water from a vase of flowers, or offering fresh eggs to a lawyer. He suddenly finds himself flooded with bills from impatient creditors and becomes aware that he is in the embarrassing position of owing everyone money and having none. As he and his young wife, Louise, are lamenting the fact over breakfast, a solicitor appears and announces that Aubrey's brother has died and left him a life interest in his fortune. Then his troubles really begin! He has to die three times in order to work things out to his wife's complete satisfaction.

We'll never forget George Hamilton when he dropped the barrel to reveal his flashy red and green plaid shorts; Herby Johnson with the red patch on his pants running out the door with a pitchfork; Bobby Braid's sharp wig and inimitable manner; June Ide chasing Hammy around the stage and finally cornering him; Dot Pelkey's remarks as Miss Mullett; Johnny Tirrell desperately trying out his signals; Dot Murley playing up to the butler; Jack Taylor's walk and trick matchbook; and the fuse that blew at the crucial moment.

The characters could always be identified by these lines:

Aubrey: I'll never die again as long as I live.
Louise: I've got an idea!
Auntie: You needn't shout; I'm not deaf.
Giles: Eggs.
Jean: George, you can kiss me. I could tell you anywhere by your kiss!

FOOTBALL FOLIO

During the 1942-43 season the sports writers promoted the Sachems from Class C to Class B. Over the period of the five preceding years Saugus had played 51 games, 36 of which were won, 10 lost, and five tied. This Class B team under Co-Captains Pendlebury and Flaherty and Coaches Toczylowski and Reardon, assisted by "Doc" Faulkner and Mr. Bly, gave Saugus a season which will be considered outstanding in gridiron history.

CHELSEA

To inaugurate Saugus High's football season, the Sachems completely dominated the first game when they played Chelsea High. An enthusiastic crowd of seven thousand fans, filling Chelsea Memorial Stadium, witnessed this initial classic. Although the first period proved that Saugus was the superior team, it did not result in a score. Capitalizing on a bad kick in the second period, Toz's boys made a lone touchdown when Babcock ran for the score. Soon after Godett's spectacular punt of 65 yards the game ended.

LEOMINSTER

When Saugus traveled to Leominster, September 19, our boys encountered far stronger opposition than they had met the week before at Chelsea. The hard-fought game ended with Saugus on the short end of a 19 to 6 score. An outstanding feature was Bobby Colcord's thrilling 70-yard run to tally for Leominster. Saugus' lone touchdown was made by Jim MacDougall. Lack of substitutes proved to be disastrous for the visitors.

BEVERLY

Receiving staunch welcome on his visit back home, former assistant Saugus coach, Nick Morris, of Beverly, saw his team take a sound beating at the hands of the Sachems. Beverly scored in the first canto, but the Sachems roared back to score two tallies from marches of 62 and 58 yards respectively. The recovery of a Beverly fumble in the end zone by Waybright made the final score 26-6.

GLOUCESTER

Under the leadership of Godett and Babcock, the victory-inspired Sachem eleven drowned the ill-starred Gloucester fishermen by displaying finally a 20 to 0 score. After Ed McKay had aroused the fighting spirit in the Sachems by his very long punt, the visitors began their second drive, which went 88 yards for the score. Ingeniously using both the "T" formation and the Notre Dame shift, the Sachems scored two more touchdowns in the second half. Godett and MacDougall scored, and Bob Connell added the extra points.

AMESBURY

A stubborn, spirited, underdog Amesbury team gloriously went down to defeat at the hands of the Sachems at Amesbury on October 10. The hard-fought contest was decided late in the fourth period when Huff scored on an aerial from Godett.

MELROSE

By scoring in the first minutes of play, the powerful Melrose Raiders lived up to their enviable reputation and maintained their record of being unbeaten, untied, and unscored-upon. Hallahan, capitalizing on a Saugus penalty and fumble in the first minutes of play, scored from the Saugus one-foot line. The Sachems fought valiantly to knot the score, but upon reaching the Melrose 25-yard line, they were held by the visiting team.

REVERE

The most spectacular victory of the season came to the Sachems at the expense of a stellar, but stunned Revere eleven. This powerful, undefeated football team was hungrily devouring all kinds of honors—until it met Saugus! Led by Mannone, Sawtelle, Parsons, Crisafi and De Sisto, Revere excelled during the first period in both rushing and passing. It was Mannone's accurate passes that led to the first two scores. Fortunately for the Sachems, both points after touchdown failed. The Saugus boys scored in the second quarter as Babcock took the ball over from the three-yard marker. Connell's attempted placement was blocked. Supposedly inspired by a pep-talk, the determined Sachems roared back in the second half to score early when Connell crashed the Revere line for the tally. Unsatisfied with a tie, Bob Connell then proceeded with his steady toe to win the game for Saugus via the placement route.

WOBURN

Coach Toczylowski's charges, fulfilling all predictions, completely outclassed a "green," fighting Woburn team, 20 to 6. Interception of passes and the recovery of fumbles helped Saugus to score, so that the second team displayed its talents for a part of the game. The scores for the Sachems were made by Waybright on a pass, Godett on a rush, and Babcock on an end sweep. Although defeated, Woburn displayed its punch by wresting one touchdown in the last period, when Forrester scored on a pass.

SWAMPSCOTT

The mighty Swampscott High team put on a stirring drive in the fading minutes of an exciting game at Stackpole Field, and thus tied Saugus 6-6.

The teams, being evenly matched, played a see-saw game until MacDougall broke the ice by recovering a fumble. This action stimulated an 85-yard march involving Godett, MacDougall and Huff, who finally smashed through center for the Saugus score. Sandy Grant, the brilliant Swampscott back, tied the score in the final minutes by a wide end-sweep.

MARBLEHEAD

Although the Sachems brought forth their own bag of tricks, they could not match the spells of the Marblehead Magic Makers, who defeated them 13-0. The first tally for the undefeated Marbleheaders came in the second quarter as Chapman threw a 35-yard pass, and Barry, the receiver, reached pay dirt. Larkin kicked the extra point. In the final period Chapman broke into the open and sped 70 yards for the second score. That the contest was not one sided, however, was indicated by the fact that the Sachems staged long, powerful drives in the second and third periods.

WAKEFIELD

The climax of the 1942 season came on Thanksgiving Day when the Sachems edged the powerful Wakefield team 7-0 at Walton Field. Despite the inclement weather, 3,000 fans turned out for the annual classic. The lone score came in the third period when Babcock plodded to Wakefield's 10-yard line to grab a long pass from his running mate, Godett. He completed his trip to the goal, making the score 6-0 for the Sachems. Connell then kicked the extra point.

And so we came to the end of the 1942 Sachem football chapter. The schedule was one of the most difficult a Saugus High team has had to face, but the results show it to be one of the most successful seasons.

CROSS COUNTRY

Saugus started its cross country season without such expert runners as last year's Captain, Joe Gould, and William Horne, but it did have veterans in Harry Whyte, John Thomas, Herbert Johnson, and George Pike. Although the team did not participate in as many meets as last year's team, it did take place in some very important ones. Two of its members, Whyte and Thomas, joined the U. S. Marines in 1943.

The first meet with the Northeastern Freshmen, although lost by Saugus, showed good running. Pike was the first man in for Saugus. Incidentally, Northeastern Frosh later won the New England cross country championship. Second in line came Revere which Saugus defeated by one point as it did in football. George Pike set a new course record in this meet.

Next was the Greater Boston Meet at Everett. All greater Boston schools were represented. Everett was first; Saugus, second. The State Meet was held at Boston University's Nickerson Field where Saugus placed sixth out of 22 schools. Pike was first man for Saugus. The final event was the North Shore Meet at Saugus where, although Everett was first and Saugus second, Saugus led the real North Shore teams. Pike lost first place by one inch.

The team was made up this year of: Pike, Johnson, Whyte, Waugh, Thomas, Steadman, and Laura.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

Coach Toczylowski, assisted by Mr. Bly, had charge of the boys participating in this sport, and arranged a schedule in keeping with the times—a good number of fast intramural, class games.

Room 106 led the senior homerooms; 113 was first among the juniors; 209 topped the sophomore rooms; and 201 supplied the winning freshman team.

After these intramural games had taken place, an all-star team played a first game with the faculty. Mr. Chadsey and Mr. Lovett were the high-scoring players in this game which the faculty won, while Hal Huff and Dave Nagle paced the losers with ten points each. Art Blake was next with eight points. The All-Stars then took on the alumni, and really gave them a thrashing. A return faculty-student game was called by popular demand. In the first faculty game the All-Stars had been without the services of their flashing guard, Don Grimes. Now, to prove his worthiness as a star, Don paced the All-Stars to a 70-49 victory over the faculty, running up an individual score of 30 points. Dave Nagle was close with 20 points.

Such is the account of an exciting, home basketball season in wartime.

All-Star players were: First string, Huff, Grimes, Waybright, Reiniger, and D. Nagle. Others: Allen, Babcock, Blake, MacDougall, C. Nagle, Nickerson, Parker, Spinney, and Vatcher.

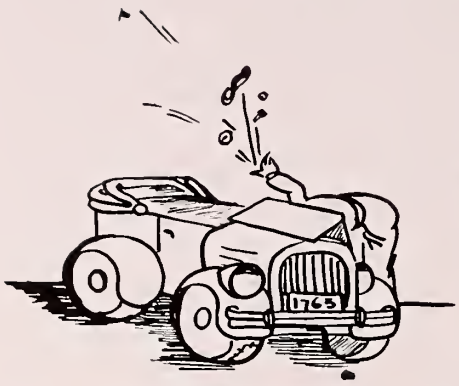
GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Intramural basketball for girls once again marked a big event on the school's sports calendar. Miss Gerry Sullivan was its able coach. Friday nights, on which the games were played, were shared with the boys' basketball team. The first game in January between the seniors and juniors ended with a score of 14 to 8 in favor of the seniors. In February, the game ended with sophomores beating the freshmen 7-6. The two winning teams met in March —the results being, Seniors 16, Sophomores 3.

LITERARY

"OSCAR'S MAGIC TOUCH"

Characters: Will, Oscar, Jerry, Max



An ancient auto with no fenders chugs merrily along a lonesome stretch of highway. Four boys are in the car. In the back seat are Will and Oscar, Max is seated in front with Jerry, who is driving.

Jerry: Oh Hum . . .

Will: Ain't nature grand.

Jerry: Gee, what a beautiful day! So peaceful and quiet.

Max: It would be quiet if this old crate would stop chugging.

Jerry: What do you expect it to do, purr?

Max: Is it my imagination or do I see steam coming from that radiator?

Will: The old girl must be thirsty again.

Oscar: Well, this makes the tenth time today; I'd hate to be caught on a desert with this car.

Jerry (Filling the radiator with water from a quart jar): I guess the radiator must leak.

Will: Well, that's a very logical conclusion.

(The car again resumes its journey, but the boys have hardly settled themselves when she stops again.)

Max: Hey, if this keeps up, we'll all end up with the jerks.

Oscar: Ya—this irregular movement doesn't agree with my stomach.

Jerry: What's wrong now?

Will: Could it be that we're out of gas?

Jerry: We started out with fifteen gallons.

Max: I've heard of tanks leaking.

Oscar: That's ridiculous in this case, but we could look into the matter.

Jerry: No, we've got plenty of gas. I checked it a while ago.

Will: Gas wouldn't do this crate any good anyway.

Jerry: I'll have you know that this car can do fifteen miles to a gallon.

Oscar: Well, this must be her off-day.

Max: Hey, look! A gallon of kerosene in the trunk. It makes a pretty good substitute for gas.

Jerry: Are you sure?

Max (pouring it in the tank): Yup. My father used it once. The only trouble is it makes a little smoke.

Will (as smoke pours from the hood): Quick, hand me a handkerchief.

Jerry (starts the car again): What a smell!

Oscar: Hurry, find the fire department!

Max: Well at least we're moving.

Oscar: I came out to the country to view the beauties of nature and now I can't even open my eyes.

(Suddenly with a loud screech the old car comes to a halt.)

Jerry: Now we've hit the jackpot for sure.

Oscar: Looks like the old girl has finally died from old age.
Max: What now? Walk or stay here and starve?
Oscar (pulling a book from his rear pocket): Ha, now I can use my knowledge as an auto mechanic.
Will: What you know about mechanics I could teach my illiterate aunt.
Oscar: It says here that the grease cups need filling every three months. Well, what's the matter?
Jerry: We ain't going to wait here three months to fill any grease cups.
Will: Wow—when this tin-can stalls, it ain't fooling!
Jerry: And there isn't a house in miles.
Will: This ash-can must be allergic to forward motion.
(All this time Oscar is studying his book quietly.)
Oscar (suddenly seeing the light): I can fix it.
Jerry: Nuts.
Will: Let him try. After all—
Jerry: O. K., Oscar. Go to it. (All except Oscar sit on the running board.)
Oscar: Got any tools?
Jerry: Only a hammer and a chisel.
Oscar: That's enough.
Will (groaning): Jerry, I take it back; if you value your car at all, make this droop take his hands off of it.
Oscar: Oh, don't be so darn ignorant. Well, here goes!
(Oscar works by himself for at least ten minutes when the boys hear a sound like iron filings dropping on a tin plate.)
Will: Oh-oh. Those are parts of the motor no doubt.
(The three boys look over the top of the car and watch Oscar.)
Oscar: Now let x equal the pressure on the left doo-hickee and y, on the right. Square the two and find the circulation in each chamber. Now x plus 10 plus y plus 10 equals the new co-efficient of gas distribution. Thus the square root will be equal to the reason the motor will not start.
(Then more parts fall from the motor.)
Jerry: Oh! My poor old motor!
Oscar: Now loosen the dinkus on the doo-flicker and tighten the dribulator button and—
Will: STOP. This has gone far enough!
Max: Look at that poor motor!
Jerry: Have pity on my poor car, Oscar.
Oscar: You gentlemen shock me.
Jerry: Well, that's that. I'll close this hood.
(As Jerry closes the hood the motor begins to rumble.)
Will: Ye Gods—the car runs!
Max: Oscar, you're a genius!
Oscar: Now, to that I agree.
Jerry: What did you do, Oscar? Gee—
Oscar (not knowing himself): Just applied my magical mechanical touch.
(Happily but still confused the boys chug homeward. The motor runs perfectly even though Oscar still has six parts in his coat pocket.)

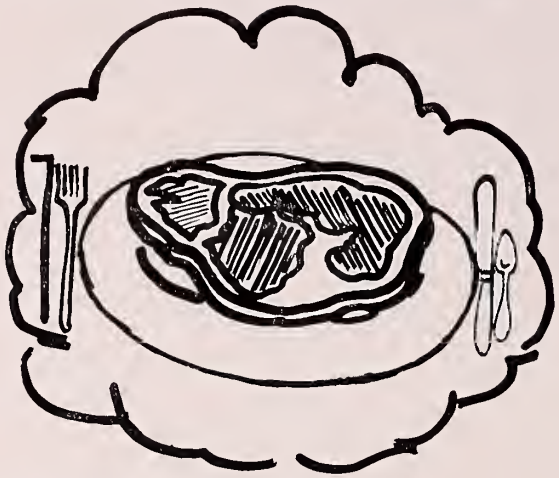
ODE TO A BEEFSTEAK



Oh tenderloin, come back again,
And end our misery and pain;
Such grief, since thou hast gone away,
And won't come back, although we pray.

Your smell when cooking in the pot,
Then served at dinner piping hot,
Would tempt the tongues of men of fashions;
But even they must watch their rations.

Oh beef, when will thou come once more,
To fill our stomachs as before?
Why worry though; we still have horse.
They say it's tasty served with sauce!

GOOD SPORT

Joan, when skipping to the garage one spring morning to get her bike, spied Ned Beck, her next door neighbor, and called out her usual, "Hi." She didn't hear his accustomed answer although he was looking straight at her. Oh well, thought Joan, he probably got out the wrong side of the bed. Joan met the gang at the corner and they started for school.

"Well, I suppose you're going to Jim's party Saturday after the game, Joanie," piped out Norma.

"Sure thing," she replied, "I suppose we'll all be there."

"I hear Jim's having his cousin from California there. We're going to have a roaring good time."

"You bet," they all exclaimed.

"Here's the dear old school," said Joan, "I'll meet you this afternoon, Norma, so be sure and wait for me." And without saying goodbye, Joan rushed into the building to see if Ned was angry.

Seeing him by the gym, she ran to greet him, shouting, "Well, stranger, what's the matter with you?"

Ned just appeared blank and said, "Nothing."

Joan asked, "Ned, have you changed your mind about taking me to the party?"

He looked down at the floor and replied, "I can't go," and that was all.

Joan turned and left without a word. She could feel the hot tears swelling in her eyes. Oh, how much she'd planned on this party and going with Ned, the star football player. She'd be the only one of her crowd not going.

After school she met Norma and told her troubles to her.

"Cheer up," said Norma, "You'll probably get another invitation."

Norma was right. That night one of the Sophs asked Joan to the party. All was well again. Saturday went off very well, and the boy with whom Joan went turned out to be loads of fun.

Monday evening as Joan was finishing her homework she was surprised to hear Ned's familiar knock at the door.

Pleasantly she greeted him but she still felt a little hurt.

"Boy," exclaimed Ned, flopping himself in a chair. "I didn't think you'd speak to me again after the way I treated you. You see, Joanie, I couldn't take you to the party because I had to select the girl I considered tops in the whole school and I had to treat her like dirt. It was a lot of nonsense but I know now who the top girl in my life is and I think she's the best sport in the whole world. You see, I was being initiated into the Krazy Club, Joanie."

SACHEM HERITAGE

Tarry at the river ebbing;
It beckons with a thought.
Enter the forest seclusion;
Falling-leaves bear message.
Witness the marshland primeval;
Parched grass carries a meaning.
Grasp these in their full thought,
And, with character understood,
Wield it with fullest pride.
Its remembrance lies in you.

THE LAST HUNT

I

His body sleek, his fur so white
That hunters saw him in the night.
But every hunt was made in vain
For this white deer was far from tame.
His stalwart legs of trim physique
Made any other deer look meek.
His set of antlers was his crown
For which, to men, he was renowned.

II

They called this buck the Great White King.
Through all the woods his name would ring.
He was the smartest of them all
His name would every hunter call.
His forest home was anywhere
And every home he took with care.
But sometime there must come an end.
And him, did God to heaven send.

III

It was a cold and wintry day,
And in his windfall King did stay.
He had been hunted all that night
And now his muscles were stretched tight.
Then, suddenly, the forest rang!
The sound was like a rifle's bang.
A stinging pain cut short King's peace
The blood oozed from a bullet's crease.

IV

He was off like a flash with a flurry of snow,
His fleetness, a wonder, all hunters know.
His wound was slight and his hopes were high
So he ran to a hill which reached close to the sky.
The man with the gun pushed on toward the hill
While the Great White King stood silently still.
Behind was the hunter, beyond was a cliff,
At his sides there were trees which were lifeless and stiff.

V

He backed toward the edge, as the hunter trudged on
And shyly retreated, the same as a fawn.
His hoof struck a snag at the cliff's very edge,
And down White King went, to hit square on a ledge.
The hunter then solemnly built up a cross
Of sticks and of stones, and of brownish, green moss.
And as far as we know, King lies up there still,
For no one has been to the top of that hill.

C'MON, ADMIT IT

Well, we've come to the end of the journey! Some of us never thought we'd quite make it, but somehow or another we managed to crawl along behind the rest of 'em.

As we look back, memories spring up before us recalling the pleasant—and then again the . . . . unmentionables. Remember . . . . the time you got caught up in the study hall, shooting pencils through the air—how easy it was to idle away time down in the cafeteria by getting a basement slip and roaming all over the building (prearranged with a classmate, shall we say)? And how red you turned when a certain teacher happened to come across a note unknowingly dropped beside your chair. Perhaps a few remember that sad day when Mr. Pearce was to be the judge of some silly antics, and how you squirmed beneath that piercing gaze, blurting out some weak excuse only to be tripped up by the next phrase.

Sure, the seats may be crumbling with age and the desks "mutilated beyond recognition."

Maybe you've still got ten hours to make up for a certain session-distributor in 112 for smoking in the basement, thinking and demonstrating the fact that you know more than the teacher, or even going so far as signing your own report card. (It's been done, of course.)

For all these things, good or bad, if you had to go through it all over again how many of you would choose another school, but good old Saugus High?

Think back now; remember the things you did, the fun you had; those were the grandest four years of your life.

You'll see.

TEA FOR TWO?

Said Mrs. R. to Mrs. B.,
"Drive over today and we'll have tea."
"I cannot drive, because you know,
Our tires and gas are getting low."
"Then you can walk; it's not so far,
By doing this, you'll save your car."
"But over the radio, didn't you hear,
They're rationing shoes, three pairs a year?"
"Well, never mind, as I recall,
We've had no tea since 'way last fall."

US MODERNS

As "Juke Box Saturday Night" ripped off the record machine, we finished slurping our cokes and breezed by the cash register with, "Pay you later, Toots." (That was for the doll—she loves that, so why not oblige? says I.)

So accordingly, the Duchess and I are strolling down the avenue, me popping my shirt buttons (I don't own a vest) when along comes Clark Devens, a wolf if there ever were two. He starts right in as soon as his landing gear is down, hello-sugaring my P. P. (private property).

Well now—this hound is about six-sevenths of an inch taller than I am and his hair curls and his shoe-lacings are plaid. So Cookie, innocent as she is, and not realizing what a major catastrophe she is heading for, coos back at the old grease-ball, "Hi ya, Sharp!"

That did it! Ya should've seen that bloak's physiognomy put on the old beam!

"I say, could a lowly wiffler get into this jive jump?" I put in, 'cause they weren't talkin', just looking at each other.

"Why Chips, you lil ole mouse you, I completely disforgot you! ! You're acquainted with Mr. Devens, aren't you? Or may I call you Clarkie?" she adds, mooning all over him instead of looking at me.

"Hey, Duchess! The dial's nearing the zero hour. We'd best pick up our skoits and run," says I nonchalantly and without a care in the world.

"Is it that late? Why, I never knew that time could fly so fast!"

"Oh yes, aviation is advancing slightly these days," I quipped, knowing she was forcing that sick grin.

"Well, we really ought to be scooting," she said and ole Chips says to his self, "Well, pal, I guess that settles his hash!" And I turned to face her as she walked away with the Drool!

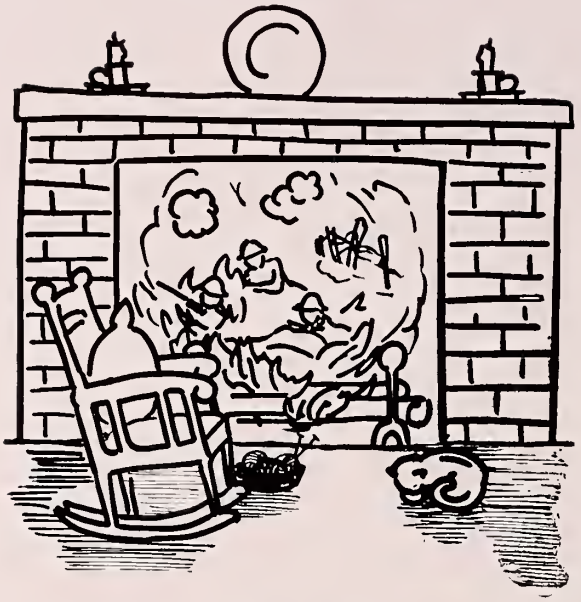
"IMAGINATION"



Gazing long at fire flaming
And in half-hypnotic trance,
I beheld my myth companions,
Watched them sing, and fight, and dance.

Gallop, gallop, gallop, gallop
Horse and bandit come in sight,
Leaving naught but devastation
E'er they mingle with the night.

Knights are now engaged in battle,
It's a fierce and fiery fight;
Now a war in flames is raging,
Steel 'gainst steel, and might 'gainst might.

Crashing blows are gently softened
As appears a heavenly sight;
"I am God," a soft voice sayeth,
Then, It, too, fades in the light.

Suddenly a burnt log snapping
Closes tight my magic door;
Ebbing embers—dying—dying,
Hold their secrets, evermore.

THE PERFECT BREAKFAST HOUR

"Has the morning paper come yet?" inquired my father.

"Yes," my sister replied, and in the same breath, "Daddy, may I have 50 cents?"

"You may not," came the answer.

"Good morning, Robert. Did you sleep well? I didn't, and I do wish you would buy a new bed for me. Lately I haven't been able to sleep at all in that old thing." My mother was in a somewhat trying mood this morning.

"Old!" echoed my father. "You've only had it six months. Mark, bring me that newspaper."

"But, Father, I want the funnies."

"He can't have them, Dad," cried Joan. "He had them first yesterday."

"Robert," said my mother in her sweetest voice. "I'd like the society page."

"Yes," said Dad, "and the beauty page and the Lovelorn Column. Here, take it. Here's your sports page, John. Here are the funnies for Joan and Mark. Now do you want anything else?"

"I'd like the front page," I replied.

"Sure," said Dad, "and I'm left with the stock exchange. What do I care about the stock exchange? There are going to be a few new rules in this house. I buy that paper and I'm going to read it first. If you people want a paper you can buy it and furthermore—"

"Robert! Look! It's the darlingest thing you ever saw and only $16.95."

"Sixteen ninety-five for what?" thundered Dad.

"Why, this dress in the paper."

"Dress? You just got four new dresses two weeks ago. Eleanor, you have got to stop squandering my money."

"While we're on the subject of money, Dad, I still need 50 cents."

"Be quiet, Joan! And you, too, John. I haven't any money for either of you."

"Robert, where are you going?"

"Where I can eat my breakfast in peace."

"But, Father. I need 50 cents."

The front door slammed after Father, cutting short the exclamations as to each one's financial status. Mother dropped her spoon and gazed after him in a most helpless air.

"Now, I wonder what's wrong with your father," she said.

MEMORIES

I love to sit and ponder while staring into space;
It brings back tender thoughts that time cannot erase.

The fun I had in school will always be to me
A souvenir of by-gone days locked in my memory.

I'll sit again and ponder while staring into space,
And what a pleasure it will be to see a smiling face.

Far in this single heart of mine the treasures that I store
Are greater than all worldly goods, and I keep adding more,

Because I know in future years, that I'll be asking why
I didn't seek more memories as time was fleeting by.

OUR DEBT

I

What is our debt to those who gave
Their lives and fortunes both, to save
This freedom, which we prize above
All earthly pleasures, wealth or love?

II

What is our debt to those unknowns
Whose shattered souls and broken bones
Shall never find a decent grave,
'Neath God's good earth, or cold green wave?

III

This is our debt which we must pay,
Before the world, and in God's way:
To make a peace that will last on
Through centuries, and then beyond.

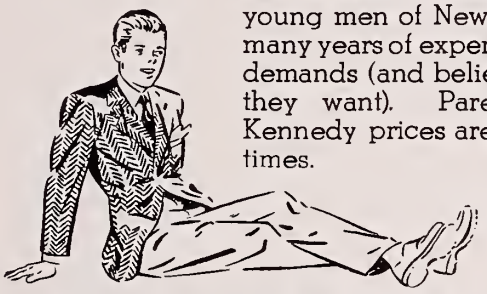
AND WE LIKE UNDER-GRADS



Pardon us for pointing, but we seem to be it when it comes to outfitting the smart young men of New England. We've had many years of experience in satisfying their demands (and believe us they know what they want). Parents approve too, for Kennedy prices are always geared to the times.
